“ Austin always had a library book on his desk. In first grade, he read mostly nonfiction books about animals and planets. He was quiet and reading was something we had in common. I will miss him. Please know that I will keep you in my thoughts and prayers.

“ Austin was like another one of my kids. He loved to give me grief. He would sneak in my house and I would find him on the couch the next morning. He knew he was always welcome there. He would even drink coffee with me and we would sit on the porch in silence. He was a wonderful young man that loved to make people laugh. My heart is heavy with grief. This world will be a duller place without his light.
